An Adventure to Live | Session Five — Video

Overview: As men, we are wired for adventure. These adventures come in three different forms. The casual adventure – to fish, ski, or travel. The crucial adventure – our calling or mission in life. The critical adventure – the deepest of all that involves our intimate partnership with God. The amount of risk with which you are willing to live is a direct correlation to what you believe about God.

Focus Verse: “My counsel is this: Live freely, animated and motivated by God’s Spirit. Then you won’t feed the compulsions of selfishness... Legalism is helpless in bringing this about; it only gets in the way.” | Galatians 5:16,23 The Message

Video Discussion Questions:

- Where would you place yourself on the “managing risk” scale? Play it safe or go for it all in.
- If we were sitting around a campfire talking about adventure, what might be one or two stories you would tell about some of your greatest casual adventures?
- What about critical adventures? Why did you pursue this and how are they important to you?
- How did Morgan’s story stir your desire for adventure?

Closing Prayer: We know that our desire for “control” often gets in the way of adventure. Help us overcome our fear of risk to trust you for things outside of our capabilities. Help us trust in you and not our abilities. We know that each of us is on a separate journey and there are no formulas with You. We declare that we want to hear Your voice and be led by You. Help us not seek adventure for our own purposes but to the greater purpose of living our life on mission for God. Amen.
